DAYLIGHT SAVING

"Chinese Community
Not Affected"

MR. H. Y. TSO'S
VIEWPOINT

H.E. Sir Andrew Caldecott's proposal made at the meeting of the Legislative Council, has caused favourable comment in many circles, but the Hong Kong General Chamber of Commerce, we understand still persist in their views expressed as long ago as 1919.

The Hon. Mr. S. H. Dodwell, Chairman of the Chamber of Commerce gave this indication in an interview with a representative of the "Hong Kong Daily Press." A resolution brought by the Chamber on April 15, 1919, that daylight saving be introduced in the Colony was defeated by twenty-three votes to twenty-one, after much discussion.

PROPOSAL FAVOURED

Mr. H. Y. Tso, Secretary for the Chinese Chamber of Commerce, said that he was inclined to favour Government's proposal, even if merely from the office worker's point of view. Daylight, as at present in force, did not allow employees to partake in recreative sport during the winter months and he deemed it reasonable that some measures should be adopted to lengthen their leisure hours.

SUBTLE SENTENCE

Man To Hold Wife's
Hand In Cinema!

American magistrates, in their treatment of minor offenders, often display a sense of humour which makes the reading of police court reports a pleasure. Although pillories no longer stand in the public squares, the old idea that the petty malefactor should be made to look foolish, or that he should be shown the error of his ways in a practical fashion, still persists in this country.

The women of New York are particularly delighted at the punishment recently awarded by Mr. Sabbatino, a Brooklyn magistrate, to Samuel Rubenstein, who came before him accused of having maltreated his wife. Mr. Rubenstein, who peddle ties in the streets for a living, assumed an attitude of virtuous innocence, and became aggrieved when the magistrate suggested that he might occasionally take his wife out in the evening, retorting that he was tired from the evenings and had no money for dissipation. A remark from the Bench that by spending less on tobacco, he might have more to spare for amusement drew the haughty reply that he did not smoke.

Mr. Sabbatino, however, was adamant. Observing that a little dissipation might do Mr. Rubenstein good, he sentenced the prisoner to take his wife to the cinema on December 2, with the strict condition that he should hold Mrs. Rubenstein's hand throughout the performance. If after this treat Mrs. Rubenstein still wished to press the case, the magistrate said that he would hear it on December 3. The women of New York are eager to see whether this subtle sentence will heal the breach between the pedlar and his wife. If it does, Mr. Sabbatino may expect to find his time fully occupied with similar cases.

EXCLUSIVE FEATURE... DIVERTING ASPECTS

"Cat Street"

(Being the first of a series of twice weekly articles devoted to frequently unseen and un-noticed elements of interest in Hong Kong.)

BY
PHILIP NESBITT

Cat Street Shopkeeper Ready For Business

It strikes this writer with some force that "Cat Street" is the most unique of its kind. There are, others, yes, in a thousand cities in every one of the three hundred or so monarchies, democracies, principalities and countries of this globe, but this Cat Street of Hong Kong! Where else will there be such a concentrated accumulation of the million and one by-products of the machine and hand work of mankind? The good Chinese, being a thrifty people, save not only the string, the paper but the contents of the package (whatever it may be) forever more. Each article, regardless of its value, is scrupulously preserved from the devastations and inroads of time.

I strolled through Cat Street, only the other day. The sun, shining on the channel, with its burden of grey ships, sparkled as if made of a myriad broken mirrors. There was no water in Cat Street, except that which was bountifully splashed upon the pavements; there was, as my roving eye could note, a limitless sea of objects. Were I to count them (vain sport) I should be muttering "one hundred and three—four—five, etc., until the end of life itself. I saw the shops wherein are the porcelain products of China, the small Buddhas, in wood, ivory, lacquer and bronze; I saw the tools of the western world, grouped in such disconcerting mass that an inspecting customs man would collapse at first glimpse. I looked closely upon Chinese domestic objects, the old charcoal flat irons (cigarette trays, now) upon watches, shoes, entertaining looking junk and other things such as binoculars and magnifying glasses. A list of the actual objects seen, aside from a general impression, would stagger the mind.

The bulk of all that was, regarded by myself, on that sunny, clear morning, could be purchased with small astuteness and enjoyable conversation with the owners, for a third of the price asked. That's the real fun of China, in a buying sense. The travellers, and the inhabitants as well, soon gather about them such a quantity of happily associated objects that when it comes time to depart, eighteen trunks go along too!

CONSTITUTIONAL CRISIS

Mr. Baldwin Makes
A Statement

NO MORGANATIC
MARRIAGE

London, Dec. 4.

The constitutional issue between the King and his Ministers is still unresolved and consultations on the questions involved continued until late last night and were resumed this morning. The Home Secretary, Sir John Simon, called at 10, Downing Street and was for about half an hour engaged with the Prime Minister with whom he proceeded to the House of Commons where a meeting of a Cabinet was held. Both Houses of Parliament met at eleven o'clock.

The King who returned to Buckingham Palace last night spent about five hours in London before motoring back to Fort Belvedere at 1.30 this morning. While at the Palace the King was visited by his brother, the Duke of York, and later the Prime Minister was received in audience by the King. After Mr. Baldwin's departure the King drove to Marlborough House to visit his mother, Queen Mary, and returned to the Palace shortly before midnight.

The Dominion Governments have been in close consultation with the United Kingdom Government throughout the crisis through their representatives in London and all developments are being fully reported to the Dominion capitals.

COMMONS QUERIES

When the House of Commons met this morning the Labour leader, Mr. C. B. Atlee, again asked the Prime Minister whether he was in a position to make a statement on the constitutional position.

The Prime Minister, Mr. Atlee, has been good enough to send me notice in the Cabinet meeting where I was presiding that he was going to ask that question. I regret to say that at the moment I have nothing to add to what I said yesterday, while being just as alive to what was asked me yesterday as to the urgency of some decision being made known at the earliest possible moment.

Mr. Winston Churchill: May I repeat the question which I asked yesterday and ask whether the Prime Minister can give an assurance that no irrevocable step will be taken before a statement is made to the House?

Mr. Baldwin: I have nothing to add to what I said yesterday. Sir William Davidson: Can the Prime Minister say whether he hopes to be able to make a statement later in the sitting of the House to-day as it is very desirable that a statement should be made as he says at the earliest possible moment?

THE WORLD'S STOMACH REMEDY

CATHOLIC NEWS
AND NOTES

By a strange coincidence, on two successive evenings of this week, lectures were given by two men of different ages and professions, who were pupils of the same school. They were Rev. T. Sheridan S. J. who spoke on "The Adventure of of Chesterton" to the English Association on Tuesday and Dr. Sherry who lectured on "Lourdes" at the Club Lusitano the following day. Both were educated at Belvedere College, Dublin.

Mr. Sheridan, who is at once sportsman and English teacher of the Leaving Certificate Class in Wah Yan College, was, as a schoolboy, one of the most promising Rugby football players in Ireland. He represented the country in the Schoolboys' International and he was already pointed to as the future scrum-half of the Irish International Team, when he abandoned all these prospects by entering the Jesuit novitiate. As a University student he distinguished himself by writing several plays, while he contributed poetry to numerous periodicals. He is the author of a popular feature running at present in the Rock, entitled "Letters of a Self-Made Catholic to his Son." Among his friends he is well known as a loyal devotee of Chesterton, whose books have undoubtedly influenced his own literary style.

THE MEDICAL ASPECT OF LOURDES

Dr. Sherry, attracted to the Club Lusitano, an audience that filled the spacious ball-room to overflowing. He spoke with first-hand acquaintance on a subject that is of particular interest to medical men: Lourdes and its Miracles. Any that expected to find in Dr. Sherry a man who shed his scientific acuteness when he went to Lourdes were agreeably surprised. For his matter-of-fact recital of the way in which the "Bureau des Constatations" at Lourdes safeguards truth and medical accuracy was highly convincing. Dr. Sherry spent several years at Lourdes and told of what he saw. His audience, which included many distinguished local doctors, followed his lecture with the greatest interest.

In addition to his experiences at Lourdes, Dr. Sherry has had a very interesting career, from medical practice in London to a leprosy settlement in China. During the war, he saw service both in France and in the East, and was described by several of his fellow-officers as an intrepid and resourceful doctor, who thought always of the wounded and never of himself. At present Dr. Sherry is giving his time and his services to the sick children in the Precious Blood Hospital at Shamshuipo.

THE IMMACULATE CONCEPTION
On the Catholic Church Calendar for the coming week there appears the Feast of the Immaculate Conception of the Blessed Virgin Mary, one of the doctrines of the Catholic Church about which there is almost never-ending misunderstanding. Nine out of ten non-Catholic writers confuse it with the Virgin Birth, which it definitely does not mean. The Immaculate Conception means the preservation of Mary the Mother of Christ from "original sin." It is part of Catholic teaching that as a result of the Fall of Adam, all other men and women lost the privilege of grace, a free supernatural gift which God had intended for the whole human race, and this loss of grace is popularly called "original sin." The Catholic Church, however, teaches that Mary was an exception to this general rule, and it is this exception, her conception in grace, that is called the Immaculate Conception.

THE ITALIAN CONVENT
BAZAAR

A broadcast talk by Fr. Byrne S. J. on Thursday night, described the various works of the Italian Convent, and its dependent institutions that would benefit by the Bazaar which is being held in the Convent to-day and to-morrow (Saturday and Sunday). He mentioned one feature of the work of the inmates of the Convent which has always attracted discerning purchasers to the Bazaar, the fine needlework for which the Convent is famous. Many specimens of work will be seen at the bazaar, and orders can be booked. There are numerous outlying convents, as far as Wanchow, depending on the parent institution in Calne Road, and they are largely depending for their support on the proceeds of the bazaar. Incidentally it may be remarked that the Italian Convent in Calne Road helps many hundreds of children quite gratuitously and gives a home to a very large number of them.

FAR EAST
BREVITIES

Winding up a "pilgrimage" of foreign-style hotels in Hong Kong and China, coupled with dignified "espionage" on the catering tactics of German, British, and Italian shipping lines along the China coast, two employees of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha left Shanghai recently. They were Mr. Shimpon Umezawa, chief of the catering section of the firm's Yokohama branch, and Mr. Hirose Kiyama, "professor" at the firm's employee training establishment.

Mr. Wang Shao-liang, former assistant manager of the Kailan Mining Administration, died in Tientsin last month at his residence on Rue Fontanier, at the age of seventy. The company's flag was flown at half mast out of respect to the deceased. He is survived by the widow, two sons and a nephew, the latter, Mr. C. K. Wang, also formerly connected with the K.M.A. The elder son, Mr. Wang Chen-min, is working in the K.M.A., and his younger son, Mr. Wang Chen-chang, is studying in Hong Kong and had recently been recalled home. Mr. Wang was connected with the K.M.A. for about ten years, and resigned at the age of sixty due to ill health. During the past ten years he had been in retirement. A large number of relatives and friends as well as senior members of the Chinese and foreign staff of the K.M.A. visited his residence to pay their respects to the deceased.

Nine Japanese officers of the Shanghai Municipal Police recently were awarded long service medals in recognition of their twenty years' activities in law enforcement in the International Settlement.

They were: Superintendent Toji Kasumi; Superintendent Kunihira Fukumoto; Acting Superintendent Kisaburo Sugai; Acting Superintendent Umezo Shibue; Inspector Tokujiro Hirai; Inspector Kyokan Iwashita; Inspector Jun Samejima; Sub-Inspector Shokichi Nakazono and Sub-Inspector Kuninari Shiba.

They were among the 30 Japanese who arrived in Shanghai on November 19, 1916, from the Tokyo Metropolitan Police, Board under the command of Inspector Naichi Ohgushi, to form the first Japanese unit of the S.M.P. Only four Japanese were in S.M.P. service at that time.

The 28th drawing of the National State Lottery took place in the Casinodrome on November 6 when the ticket winning the first prize was 275289, and a third prize ticket, 14222, were issued by Messrs. Dah Yung Co. and sold by the Wei Lee Yuan sub-agency in Avenue Edward VII, Shanghai. Five shares of the first prize ticket were purchased by a foreigner employed in a certain company in Kiang Road, three shares by the wife of a local company secretary, one share by a Mr. Tang employed by a large insurance company and the last share by a Miss Tseng, resident in the Chinese city. Mr. Tang was also extremely lucky in that he held a share in the primary approximation prize. Several workmen employed in an iron factory situated in Hsia Hai Miao shared the whole of the third prize ticket.

SUCCESSFUL
POLICE DANCE

A successful dance was held at the Hong Kong Police Gymnasium on Thursday night, among those attending being the Hon. Mr. T.H. King, Inspector General of Police, Mrs. King, and Miss King. The music was supplied by Ed. Sequeira and his brother and Mr. T. Cashman proved a very efficient M.C. Others attending included Chief Inspector and Mrs. R.H.E. Marks, Inspector and Mr. M.H. Hourihan, Sub-Inspector and Mrs. A. Kirby, Sub-Inspector and Mrs. D.J. Dredge, Sub-Inspector and Mrs. E.G. Post, Sub-Inspector and Mrs. A.T. Sabey, Sub-Inspector and Mrs. R.E.J. Brooks, Miss D. Brooks, Mr. A.F. Austen, Mr. and Mrs. J. Orem, Miss S. West, Mr. and Mrs. Fogwell, Mr. and Mrs. T. MacMahon, Mr. and Mrs. H. Barrett, Sub-Inspector and Mrs. B.C. Saunders, Mrs. K.W. Andrew, Messrs. W.S. Dail, T. Matches, W. Sullivan, A.F. Cochran, Appleton, G. Youse, V. Matkennzie, J. C. Fitz Henry and A. I. Cash.

MANSLAUGHTER
CHARGEFatal Fight Over One Cent

STREET AFFRAY

Li Sai Ho, 21, a wharf coolie, of No. 15, Halphong Road who was brought before Mr. E. Himsforth yesterday at the Kowloon Magistrate's Court on a remand charged of manslaughter was further remanded till Tuesday, November 8, at 11.30 a.m.

It was alleged that on October 24, the accused assaulted Ng Lung Tak, a godown coolie at Halphong Road, inflicting injuries as a result of which, the latter died.

E. H. Williams, Assistant Attorney General conducted proceedings for the Crown, assisted by Inspector A. H. Elston.

CASE OUTLINED

Outlining the facts of the case, Mr. Williams, stated that at 6.30 p.m. on October 24, accused had a quarrel with the deceased over the payment of gambling debts. Actually it was on a matter of a cent difference. It was alleged that the quarrel had started in the entrance of No. 15 Halphong Road. Ng Lung was inside the door while the accused was outside. One of the witnesses heard the accused say, "If you want to fight come to Hol's Wharf. You want to kill me." Ng Lung was in the room at that moment and he ran up to the accused with a pair of chopsticks and jabbed it in the accused's eye, causing him to run away with his hand over the left eye.

At the same time when Ng made this movement, he said, "If you want to fight come along."

FIRE WOOD USED?

Where the accused ran nobody knew except Li Pak Yip, accountant at the Ki Chong Grocery Shop, No. 23 Halphong Road. He stated that the defendant went into his shop to get some firewood. He noticed that Li was covering his eye with the palm of his hand and he also saw blood dripping down the latter's cheeks. He gave Li two slips of paper to wipe his eye, after which he did not see Li again.

After the chopsticks incident, Wong Sul Sum, an eye witness of the scene, said that a man came into the room and spoke to him. He went out saw a man (Ng Lung) lying in the middle of the road. Ng was bleeding from a wound in the head. He was unconscious. Witness carried Ng into No. 7 which was near by and shortly afterwards the injured man was taken to the Hospital.

There was no weapon of any sort on the ground where Ng fell. Another eye witness, Lam Wink Wo, said that shortly after their meals he saw the defendant holding something and walking towards Ng and strike him on the head, with considerable force. Ng then collapsed on the road. The defendant struck him several times and even kicked the man when he was on the ground. Later he ran towards Canton Road.

CAUSE OF DEATH

Evidence of the cause of the death was given by Dr. D. D. Fringale, medical officer of the Kowloon Hospital. He performed a post mortem on the deceased and stated that Ng died on November 8.

When Ng was admitted to the Kowloon Hospital on October 24, he had a deep scalp wound on the top of the scalp. There was a laceration of the upper lip and an abrasion on the left of the chest. He was conscious. His condition remained satisfactory until fever developed on October 27 and from that day onwards his condition grew worse.

The scalp wounds were 1 inch to the left of the vertex. It was 1 1/2 inches in length and extended down the bone. The top of the skull had a half-moon shaped depressed fracture corresponding to the scalp wound. It was 2 inches by 1/2 inches long, the convex border towards the middle line of the skull of the long axis was parallel to the axis of the skull. There was extensive meningitis on both sides of the upper surface of the brain. The cause of death was a fracture of the skull with septic meningitis consequent to the head injuries.

The case was adjourned till Tuesday morning.

When children have been educated to appreciate beauty there will be an immense improvement in public taste and public habits. Sir Hector Betherington.

EDUCATION OR LEARNING?

(BY "SCRUTATOR")

Our entire educational system has been until very recent years, based upon the ancient mediaeval tradition of the Schoolmen. Education and learning have been regarded as synonymous, to the defeat of every true purpose of education. Even in America and Britain where the new psychology has made very rapid strides in the transformation of man's other activities and thoughts, the educational processes in these countries have been slow to change. Hence the tremendous difficulties which the youth of to-day are experiencing in reconciling and adapting themselves to the world into which they move on leaving school.

MONEY WELL SPENT?

Despite the considerable amount of money, which while it is not half what is spent on armaments, absorbs a considerable part of the British annual income from taxation, there yet remains in the popular mind an irreligious indifference to the results obtained. Indeed, when education is mentioned in politics and in newspapers, it is nearly always considered in terms of money.

Whether we spend more or less seems to make up the entire issue in the minds of the majority.

The position is as ridiculous as that of the woman who values a dress simply because of the amount of money it costs, or of the man who when questioned concerning the value of his car, can only say that it costs him so many hundred pounds. Now whatever may be thought on the question of the cost of education, an impartial observer cannot fail to conclude that even the amount already being spent is not as productive as it should and could be. It is hard to see the modern youth or girl as a product of nine or twelve years of enlightened education. Without even the superficial veneer which used to denote the scholar our young "things" of today are turned loose upon the world lacking even a scholastic ambition to guide them.

One is often inclined to think that a dog will give its pups a better training. Surely the object of all rational education is to enable the individual to make the best of his life in every true, and worthy sense. This can only be attained by a truly religious education, an education which develops the mind and the body so that their owners, by a clear understanding of their limitations, may harmonise with, and in a sense, master, their environment.

IDEALISM NEEDED

Now the average young thing which leaves school, even in this colony, has very little to show, in the shape of ideals of life, technical knowledge for life, nor even have they any intelligent understanding of literature beyond the type of book which provides them with the vicarious sense of success—a success which is empty of concrete content—which they covet. In short, they have nothing which help them in any way to become intelligent citizens of a democratic state.

The free libraries, the many varieties of cheap books, newspapers and journals of the less costly sort, and most important of all the cinema, have done and are doing far more to inform and stimulate the minds and imaginations of the younger generation to-day than all our elementary schools put together.

WASTED EFFORT AND WEALTH

What then are we to conclude from this state of affairs? Only one primary thing, that the money and energy devoted to public and private education is as good as wasted!

The weakness of the system lies not in the teaching methods nor the intellectual and cultural qualifications of the majority of teachers, but in the fundamental idea, the controlling purpose of the system. Learning, as education has failed, and the essential purpose of the latter has not yet been clearly defined. Learning, according to the mediaeval idea, and rightly so, was the province of the selected few, but education for life is the right of everybody.

Theoretical knowledge to be of value, for most of us, must be strictly related to practical things within the ambit of our experience. Education must be alive, not just practicalised to produce mere wage-slaves, but a living vital experience which the individual, once introduced, will willingly undertake for himself.

The too exclusively intellectual scholasticism of the courses of teaching and examinations in schools and universities must be unfrozen," argued Sir Michael Sadler, at a recent Public Health Congress—in other words, education must be made beautiful, providing, in the words of Froebel, for "the free expression of what is the child's soul."

Self-control and self-adjustment, courage and love of truth, these are the most important considerations of any system of education, and what we need today is a clear recognition of these ends, and of the obstacles which stand in the way of their attainment. Such an attainment cannot come from irreligious men and women, nor from a society which is irreligious in its attitude and in its aims and ambitions.

It will be achieved when every man and woman, demands for their children not just the right to a means of livelihood, but when they demand the world and God as their own, inalienably and forever.

ST. ANDREW'S XMAS TREE FUND

(To the Editor, "Hong Kong Daily Press.")

Sir,—Would you be good enough to allow me to bring to the notice of your readers a scheme for unifying Christmas charitable effort, which is being put forward at St. Andrew's Church, Kowloon?

A decorated and illuminated Tree will be placed in the grounds in full view of Nathan Road and donations are invited to what is to be known as "St. Andrew's Christmas Tree Fund." These donations, which may be sent to me at St. Andrew's Vicarage, Kowloon, or placed in a box below the Christmas Tree itself, will be used directly to assist the poor of the Colony, either through St. Andrew's Benevolent Fund which tries to help anyone irrespective of race or creed, the year round, or if the donor wishes, to any other local charity, according to the donation is earmarked. Gifts in kind are also welcomed, and children are invited to bring toys to a special Toy Service in the grounds of the Church on Wednesday Dec. 23rd at 6 p.m. in front of the illuminated Christmas Tree.

It is hoped, among other things, to provide a party for some of the poorest Chinese of the Colony as was done last year, and to distribute warm clothing amongst the poorest of the folk on the junks and sampans. I am hoping that the scheme will capture the imagination of all of us as the Christmas Season approaches. Most of us feel we would like to help those less fortunately situated than ourselves, but often have great difficulty in knowing just how to give that help. Such a scheme as I have outlined above will assist us to do so.

(Rev.) J. R. HIGGS.

St. Andrew's Vicarage, Kowloon, December 4, 1936.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LESSON SERMON

First Church of Christ, Scientist, Hong Kong

Subject: God The Only Cause and Creator.

The subject of the Lesson Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, to-morrow, December 6, will be: "God the Only Cause and Creator."

The Golden Text will be: "I am the Lord that maketh all things; that stretcheth forth to heavens alone; that spreadeth abroad the earth by myself." (Isaiah 44: 24)

Among others, the following citations from the Bible will be read: "There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit. For if ye live after the flesh, ye shall die; but if ye through the Spirit do mortify the deeds of the body, ye shall live. For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God. For ye have not received the spirit of bondage again to fear; but ye have received the Spirit of adoption, whereby we cry, Abba, Father. The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God. Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we shall know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is." (Romans 8: 1, 13-16, I John 3: 2)

The Lesson Sermon will also include the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The conceptions of mortals, erring thought must give way to the ideal of all that is perfect and eternal. Through many generations human beliefs will be attaining-diviner conceptions, and the immortal and perfect model of God's creation will finally be seen as the only true conception of being. Spiritually to understand that there is but one creator, God, unfolds all creation, confirms the Scriptures, brings the sweet assurance of no parting, no pain, and of man deathless and perfect and eternal. God, the divine Principle of man, and man in God's likeness are inseparable, harmonious, and eternal. The Science of being furnishes the rule of perfection, and brings immortality to light. God and man are not the same, but in the order of divine Science, God and man coexist, and are eternal. God is the parent Mind, and man is God's spiritual offspring. When we learn the way in Christian Science and recognize man's spiritual being, we shall behold and understand God's creation—all the glories of earth and heaven and man. (Pages 280, 69, 336, 284).

Indeed children before the age of reasoning have no personal sin in this life, and shall not have torment in the life to come; yet they shall never enter into the Kingdom of Heaven, unless they are baptized: "Unless a man be born again of water and the Holy Ghost, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God." WHAT IS BAPTISM?

(The Editor, "Hong Kong Daily Press")

Dear Sir.

First of all we must bear in mind that the baptism of our Lord Jesus Christ is much higher than St. John's baptism. This is evident from the Acts of Apostles, chap. 19, vv. 1-7: "And it came to pass, while Apollos was at Corinth, that Paul having passed through the upper coasts, came to Ephesus, and found certain disciples. And he

"BLOCKADE"

For a space of three months, during the making of the New Era film "Blockade," the directors, technical adviser, photographers and assistants practically lived on the sea. The film, which deals with the gallant work done by the men of Britain's Mystery Fleet, necessitated realism, and to gain the effect, New Era purchased a schooner and a submarine, which they sank.

The company's headquarters were made at Plymouth and Weymouth, but throughout the time "exteriors" were being photographed (and the film demanded a great deal of work at sea) the company rose each morning in the cold day-break, went aboard the various ships and steamed out for "somewhere at sea" (positions allocated to them by the Naval authorities), where battles, chases and sinkings were realistically enacted. Frequently terrific gales of wind, heavy seas (which more than once nearly caused disaster) and pelting rain would prevent progress in the work, but seldom did the company return to dock before dark.

The thrilling experiences encountered by the company during the making of the film almost rival the real thrills which were being reproduced for this film record of the work done by the "Q Ships" during the war.

Geoffrey Barkas and Michael Barringer are responsible for the direction of the picture in which Earl Jellicoe appears in person, and which will be shown at the Majestic Theatre to-day.

"RAMONA"

The current outstanding event in the film world is the presentation of Helen Hunt Jackson's immortal "Ramona," produced by 20th Century-Fox in the new perfected Technicolor, which opens to-day at the Queen's and Alhambra Theatres simultaneously.

The cast of thousands featuring Loretta Young and Don Ameche, includes such brilliant players as Kent Taylor, Pauline Frederick, Jane Darwell, Katherine De Mille, Victor Kilian and John Carradine.

As long as two years ago, preparations were begun for the picturization of this beautiful love story. Darryl F. Zanuck, Twentieth Century-Fox studio production chief, spent nearly an entire year in search of the perfect "Ramona."

Scores of eligible players were tested for the role of Alessandro, Ramona's great love, and it finally went to Don Ameche. This rising young actor appeared to have all the qualifications necessary to play the part. He has a splendid voice, as has been attested by his previous success on the radio. He is six feet tall and decidedly the athletic type. His work on the screen in "Ramona" completely justifies his selection for the part.

"Ramona" was filmed in the beautiful San Jacinto mountain meadow land of Southern California, the actual spots where Ramona and A. Alessandro lived and loved many years ago, as described in the story.

"THESE THREE"

Samuel Goldwyn's new production, "These Three," which brought Miriam Hopkins, Merle Oberon and Joel McCrea to the King's Theatre, proved the most powerful and gripping drama to reach the screen in many a cinema season.

It boasts something new to film fans in dramatic situations, knit together with a skill that results in smart-paced, smooth and unforgettable entertainment. And Bonita Granville, the 12-year-old, who plays the spiteful school-girl whose vicious lie motivates the story, is one of the great acting discoveries of motion picture history.

The story, briefly, depicts how the ugly lie invented by a unruly student in a private girls' school, involving her two teachers, Miriam and Merle, and the latter's doctor, fiance, Joel McCrea, brought disaster into their lives. Due to the resultant scandal, the school is lost, the romance broken, and almost unbearable suffering and humiliation is visited upon these three innocent people, before the lie is brought to light.

Other who score in the uniformly brilliant cast are Aling Kruger, as Mary's grandmother; Catherine Doucet, as the silly, trouble-making aunt; son, and Walter Brennan. "These Three" is the dramatic smash of the season! It is released through United Artists.

MAJESTIC THEATRE

New Winter Programme

The manager of the Majestic Theatre has just announced that from January 1, the theatre will be showing "first release" pictures in Kowloon.

The prices will be the same as usual and the management has done everything possible to secure all the best films from the distributors.

STRIKES PARALYSE FILM STUDIOS

Work At Denham And Wembley Held Up

Two strikes which have broken out in the British film industry—one at Denham and the other at Wembley—are holding up work the ultimate value of which is in the neighbourhood of £750,000.

A strike at the London Film Production studios at Denham, which was declared recently, involves over 1,000 employees, and may cost the company thousands of pounds a day while it lasts.

It concerns the property department. A number of boys engaged in making paper "cut-outs" were dismissed and replaced by girls because, it is stated, they did not work fast enough. Other employees, including carpenters, electricians, plasterers, stage hands, and general workers struck in sympathy.

About 250 employees are involved in a strike at the Fox Film Studios at Wembley. Pickets were on duty yesterday. On Thursday evening, a "stage hand" took exception to the attitude adopted by a "charge hand," or foreman, when he was being given instructions. The stage hand, it is stated, on declining to apologise, was dismissed, and all the employees decided to strike in sympathy.

"Whatever action has been taken by the men is unofficial," Mr. T. O'Brien, the General Secretary of the National Association of Theatrical Employees, told me last night. "Negotiations have been continuing to-day, but there is no hope at the moment of a settlement. We have told the men that we decline to recognise the dispute as official. However, in the circumstances, we are using all available machinery or a settlement."

"We have been asked by the executives at Wembley to supply them with alternative labour in the studios, but we have refused to do this. On the other hand, they have refused to reinstate the men."

IMPORTANT PICTURES
Denham was working on a programme of important and expensive pictures. Among films which are in the making or about to be started at Denham are A. E. W. Mason's "Fire Over England," the story of the Armada, and one of the most ambitious ever attempted in England. In the cast are Flora Robson, Raymond Massey, Lawrence Olivier, Leslie Banks, and Vivien Leigh. Another is Marlene Dietrich's film "Knight Without Armour," with Robert Donat. Also there are Edward G. Robinson's "Thunder in the City," Elisabeth Bergner's "Dreaming Lips," Ann Harding's "Love From a Stranger," Conrad Veidt's "Dark Journey," "Elephant Boys" (Kipling), and "Lawrence of Arabia."

"A MESSAGE TO GARCIA"

High adventure of the sort that sets your pulses pounding; glamorous nights of romance in the tropics; rollicking, boisterous comedy—these are the elements from which the suspense-filled action of "A Message to Garcia," 20th Century's fascinating adventure romance showing at the Oriental Theatre on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, were woven.

In the supporting cast, you will see: Herbert Mundin, an irresistibly comic Cockney characterization; Enrique Acosta, who gives dignity to the role of Garcia; and Mona Barrie as an enemy spy.

ALEXANDER KORDA

The "London Gazette" published recently, stated that a certificate of naturalisation had been granted by the Home Secretary to Mr. Alexander Korda, the Hungarian film producer, of Avenue-road, London.

A rollicking screen story by W.P. Lipscomb and Gene Fowler, and deft direction by George Marshall, are two more reasons why "A Message to Garcia" is a jamboree of unadulterated entertainment.

In the supporting cast, you will see: Herbert Mundin, an irresistibly comic Cockney characterization; Enrique Acosta, who gives dignity to the role of Garcia; and Mona Barrie as an enemy spy.

CLAIM FOR MONEY

Women At Variance In Court

MAH JONGG DEBTS SAYS DEFENCE

The case in which Mrs. So Yee Ka, alias So Sui Cheung, brought an action against Mrs. Chan Yat Cho, claiming $800 as balance due for a money loan, was concluded before the Chief Justice, Sir Atholl MacGregor, at the Supreme Court yesterday afternoon. Judgment will be delivered at 11 a.m. this morning.

Mr. J.M. D'Almada Remedios appeared for the plaintiff.

Mr. M. W. Lo, appearing for the defendant, said that the defence was an absolute denial that the defendant ever borrowed any money from the plaintiff. The defendant and the plaintiff were admittedly schoolmates but they never met again after leaving school for over ten years and it was an absolute denial that year that the plaintiff came across the defendant at the Ko Shing Theatre where she happened to see the defendant's husband acting. The plaintiff renewed friendship and when the defendant's husband went to Canton to act the plaintiff went up with the defendant together and stayed at the defendant's mother's house for several days. During that time they played several games of mah jongg and the defendant lost money to the plaintiff.

Defendant, in evidence, stated that her losses amounted to approximately $250. She could not remember exactly what sum she lost.

His Lordship: In my experience at least, when playing cards you do not play a game of approximation.

Witness continued that they played ten games. She paid the plaintiff $20 and told her that she would pay from time to time when she had money. She had not paid since. Witness was given $40 pocket money a month from her husband.

The mah jongg games were played with the stakes at $5 for a 1,000. Double stakes counted 50 points.

Mr. Remedios: That is very heavy.

Witness: That is why I lost so much. (Laughter).

The defendant's husband, Kwan Tak Hing, actor, and Chan Yan, Chinese Government tax collector, also gave evidence.

Man Refuses To Be Older Than Seventeen

An amusing incident was enacted yesterday at the Central Magistracy when Sin Sze-kau appeared before the magistrate, Mr. J. A. Fraser, on the charge of stealing some brass fittings.

The incident occurred when Sub-Inspector Madgwick informed his Worship that the defendant said that he was only seventeen years old.

His Worship asked defendant if he, the accused, expected the court to believe that he was so young, when it was quite obvious that he was much older.

However, defendant remained adamant and reiterated that he was only seventeen.

Defendant was a glass cutter employed by the Corney Glass Factory. He was seen to leave the building on December 3 with the fittings, and he was arrested by a district watchman.

His employer was also in court, and told his Worship that the accused was very lazy and had formed bad habits the last year.

Mr. Fraser imposed a fine of $20 or three weeks in gaol.

WAR SUFFERERS IN NORTH CHINA

It is understood that the Hong Kong Chinese Chamber of Commerce has remitted ten thousand dollars for the relief of the war sufferers in North China.

It is also reported that the social bodies and schools are contributing one day's wages, and three days' reduced food rations towards the relief funds—Chinese Evening Press.

WOMAN COMMITTED TO SESSIONS More Heroin Pills

Revenue Officer A. W. Grimmit, with a party, raided 20, Canal Road, West, first floor on November 11, at 6.30 p.m.

When the party demanded admission, it was refused them so the door had to be broken down.

Chinese Revenue Officer, 7, went to the rear of the premises upon instruction, and saw Chan Nui, a woman, climbing out of a window to the next house. He arrested her.

Appearing yesterday before Mr. K. Keen at the Central Magistracy she was committed to stand trial at the next Criminal sessions, on a charge for possession of 33.118 heroin pills.

Mr. M. J. Abbott, the assistant crown solicitor, appeared for the prosecution, and said that the premises was fitted out with all the paraphernalia for the manufacture of heroin.

The defendant said that she had been employed there for only ten days in the capacity of cook. Her hands were free from the pink stain of heroin, and her statement at the Central police station was, "I was there cooking rice, and the pills are not mine!"

SERIOUS FORM OF FRAUDS

Mental In Clutches Of The Law

Tong Kwan, 30, a cook boy, was sentenced to four weeks hard labour by Mr. J. A. Fraser yesterday morning at the Central Magistracy, for obtaining goods on false pretences from the Ching Shan Chan Store, at Great George Street.

Det.-Sgt. C. Downman conducted the case for the prosecution, and Mr. O'Connor, of 3, Leighton Hill Road, the former employer of the boy, was in court.

It was alleged that some time in June the defendant went to the compradore with a pass book of Mr. O'Connor's and purchased a quantity of food stuff. The compradore did not ask for the money at the end of the month because he knew Mr. O'Connor well. But, at the end of the next month he presented the bill to Mr. O'Connor who refused to pay.

The boy had purchased food to the amount of $160.25 of which only $13 had been paid. Defendant admitted that he resold the goods to the compradore at a twenty per cent discount.

His Worship said that it was a very serious form of fraud and that the compradore should be more careful.

TWO SUMMONS DISMISSED

Rice Birds And Chickens At Market

Two summons were dismissed against Lau Choi, a stall holder at the Central market when he appeared before Mr. J. A. Fraser at the Central Magistracy yesterday.

Lau Choi was represented by Mr. G. K. Hall Brutton, and Sanitary Insp. W. T. White prosecuted.

The first summons was brought because Insp. White saw six men plucking rice birds at stall 71.

Mr. Brutton asked the case to be dismissed because Insp. White could not recognise the men at the stall, nor did he know if they were employed at stall 71.

His Worship forthwith dismissed the case.

On the other summons, Insp. White said that on November 7 he inspected the Central Market and found stall 83 in a very dirty condition. It was at the poultry section and excreta was in abundant quantity around the stall.

Mr. Brutton said that there were about 300 chickens together with some ducks and geese. It was only to be expected that there would be excreta and other forms of dirt around the poultry.

The stall had been cleaned at six that morning and again at 10.

Mr. Brutton said that he had written to the Chairman of the Urban Council about not being warned before the summons was served, and Mr. Fraser said that he quite agreed with that.

The summons was dismissed with a caution.

MOTORING OFFENCE

"Perhaps $10 Will Help You To Remember"

T. K. Ng, student of the Diocesan Boys' School was brought Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday morning for driving without due care and caution, at Salisbury Road on November 14 at 1.25 p.m.

Traffic Sergeant McHardy said that the defendant passed a Kowloon motor bus, at Salisbury, causing the bus driver to jam on the brakes and swerve violently to one side. Accused swerved in front of the bus in order to get into the parking garage.

The prosecuting officer, said that the boy started driving on October 1.

His Worship: You must follow the car and not try to cut in front. You are lucky that the bus driver is a good driver, otherwise there would have been an accident! Perhaps $10 will help you to remember that.

CHINESE MEDICAL PRACTICE

Instructive Lecture By
Dr. Wu Lien-Teh

H.K. UNIVERSITY MEDICAL SOCIETY

A talk on the new medicine and its impact on old-style Chinese medical practice was delivered by Dr. Wu Lien-teh before the Hong Kong University Medical Society last night. The speak was introduced by Professor W. I. Gerrard who presided, and was accorded a hearty reception by his listeners.

THE ADDRESS

In the course of his address Dr. Wu Lien-teh said:—

There are few places more suitable than Hong Kong to form a background for a discussion of Chinese medical history. For this was among the first cities where the early attempts to educate Chinese pupils in modern medicine were placed upon a solid foundation by the opening of a proper medical school in 1887. And it was in this colony also where the late Dr. Sun Yat-sen, founder and first President of the Chinese Republic, received his diploma. Not less striking is the close proximity of Hong Kong to the cradle of modern Chinese medicine in Canton and Macao. Indeed, it may be maintained that the government medical undertakings in Hong Kong form a direct continuation of the activities of the surgeons of the East India Company resident at Canton and Macao, and that the present medical missionary undertakings are a continuation of the hospital work commenced at Macao in 1838, and later transferred to Hong Kong in 1843.

Before the establishment of the Macao Hospital, the new medicine had already gained a permanent foothold in South China. Earlier still, in 1805 Jenner's method of smallpox vaccination had been introduced into Canton by Alexander Pearson, one of the great surgeons to the East India Company. In 1820 a dispensary for Chinese had been opened at Macao by Dr. Livingstone and the Rev. Robert Morrison, followed in 1828 by the opening of an Ophthalmic Hospital in the same city and a dispensary for the Chinese at Canton, both under the guidance of Dr. Colledge who was also attached to the East India Company. These undertakings paved the way for the opening of the Canton Hospital under Dr. Peter Parker, the first medical missionary to China.

THE OLD-STYLE PRACTICE

In their view, Chinese medical art had become inadequate, being bound by the fetters of tradition. Practically no surgery was performed; indeed the knowledge possessed by the practitioners upon anatomy and physiology consisted mostly of absurd concepts, not backed by actual observation. In treatment, fancies and not facts appeared to preponderate, consisting as it did partly of the indiscriminate use of acupuncture and similar manipulations, and partly of drugs which the early foreign observers believed inadequate, sometimes repulsive.

When we consider how the newcomers were hampered first by the lack of knowledge of the Chinese language and customs and then by the demands made upon their time and attention by hosts of sufferers, it is not surprising to find that those early impressions of old-style Chinese practice proved in some cases to be out of perspective. In others quite incorrect. Since that time prolonged and patient studies have been carried out, first by enlightened and erudite foreigners, later by Chinese experts, thus enabling us now to evaluate properly the strong and weak points of indigenous Chinese medicine.

SACREDNESS OF THE BODY

It must be admitted that the early foreign observers erred least in their unfavourable judgment of anatomy, physiology and consequently surgery. For, although there are some early references to dissection, the traditional belief in the sacredness of the body made attempts in this direction rather sporadic.

When needed for purposes of dissection the corpses of bandits and criminals were secured. For these reasons, apart from some attempts to give exact measurements of the internal organs, but little useful knowledge is available in the old writings on anatomy.

A similar lack of progress was present in surgery. Though we read of ancient masters, like Pien Chiao and Hua T'o, who knew anaesthesia and performed major operations under its influence, their art did not survive them. Though writings dealing with eye diseases were abundant, practical results were not encouraging. It is generally acknowledged that massage has been practised in China from time immemorial. Less known is the fact that a few of the ancients, like Hua T'o, made excellent use of hydrotherapy in the treatment of fevers. Unfortunately, his mode of treatment was not continued.

INFECTIOUS DISEASES

Turning to infectious diseases we find that in some respects the ancient ideas were quite sound. Leprosy was first mentioned in the Chou dynasty. Cholera was not known in China until the great pandemic of 1817, since which time it has retained a more or less firm hold in this country.

Smallpox is another old disease upon which more books have been written than perhaps any other affection. The general opinion is that it was introduced from outside, perhaps Mongolia, about 49 A.D. as a result of war with the Mongols. An epoch-making contribution of the Sung dynasty was the discovery of inoculation against smallpox. It is quite possible that scientific ideas regarding inoculation were exchanged between Chinese, Arabian and Persian savants at that time.

MATERIA MEDICA

The systematic use of drugs for the treatment of diseases has a history as old as that of the Chinese race. The oldest Herbal, the Pen-Ts'ao Ching, is ascribed to Emperor Shen Nung (2838-2698 B.C.), though it actually appeared during the Western Han dynasty (206 B.C.-25 A.D.).

Chinese medicine attained a high degree of development during the Chou dynasty, particularly in the matter of medical organization, hygiene and public health. It may be stated that for a long time the new medicine developed rather side by side with the continuance of old-style practice than in open competition with it. The first serious clash of the two schools arose out of the terrible Manchurian pneumonic plague epidemic which swept over Manchuria and North China in 1910-11.

NEW MEDICAL HISTORY

Whilst old-style medicine showed itself utterly powerless in this catastrophe, the efficiency and heroism displayed by modern-trained Chinese physicians were instrumental in ridding the country of the plague within the short space of three months. Their work attracted universal attention and laid the foundation of systematic public health activities, thus ushering in a new (second) phase in Chinese medical history. The inauguration of the National Government in Nanking and the establishment of the Ministry of Health in 1927 finally co-ordinated all health activities under one central organ.

If we contemplate the amount of work and success crowded into the comparatively short space of a century, the new medicine may indeed be proud of its record in China. But whilst these achievements encourage us to approach the work before us in a spirit of hopefulness, they should not mislead us into minimizing the difficulties and rockers ahead.

THE FUTURE DOCTOR

The conscientious doctor in the China of the future would have to know more of preventive than of curative medicine, and willing to send such patients to municipal or government hospitals for treatment rather than attempt it at his own confined or perhaps insufficiently-equipped office. He will practise partly in rural areas and he will be in touch with the nearest government health clinics where more facilities for treatment are at hand.

Events in other directions than medicine are shaping themselves very rapidly throughout China, and it is not too much to hope that through a proper appreciation and practice of the new medicine by both the medical and lay public a

SPIRITUAL HEALING

Christian Fellowship
Meeting

REV G. H. BATEMAN

A talk on "Spiritual Healing" was the subject given at the weekly Christian Fellowship Meeting held in the Helena May Institute yesterday morning. The Rev. G. H. Bateman was the speaker.

Referring to Prof. W. C. W. Nixon's recent psychology lecture, the speaker pointed out that the danger to-day was that people made use of psychology in attributing the cause of healing. Spiritual healing went a step further and we cannot have a sound mind and a sound body if our soul was not in harmony with them. People nowadays do a lot of harm by trying to divide their spirit, mind and body into three separate parts.

FAITH IN GOD

The Rev. Mr. Bateman pointed out that faith in God was the fundament of health, holiness and wholeness and one must not confound God's will with his escapable fate. Sickness was contrary to the will of God and we were entirely justified to do all we could to overcome sickness.

"I refuse to accept the word 'incurable,'" the speaker said and pointed out that many people these days believe they were affected by some mysterious influence when they were ill. Man was equipped with a body which was meant to be a perfect instrument for his contact with God.

There was something behind the healing power of Nature, a higher power than Nature. A reply to the question, "Why are people sometimes not cured," was that they were not spiritual and powerful enough to obtain it. The lack of faith was the greatest stumbling block to healing.

LACK OF CONFIDENCE

Citing the case of a suicide by water, the speaker stated that medical authority will render the verdict of "Suffocation from drowning," while a jury would say "While of unsound mind." Although not knowing the case of his mental disease, the speaker pointed out that a large percentage of suicide was caused by the want of confidence in God.

In conclusion, the Rev. Mr. Bateman stated that in the olden days all physical healing was done by the Church but nowadays it is done by doctors. However, the speaker stressed upon the necessity of spiritual healing at the same time.

THEOSOPHICAL POETRY

Truths In Beautiful
Language

MRS. PARKINSON'S
ADDRESS

"In a sense" began Mrs. O. M. Parkinson, M.A., at the local Theosophical Society at 1B Chater Road last Thursday "all inspired poetry is Theosophical poetry. In beautiful language, rhythmic and splendid, the great poets voice Theosophical truths in verse."

Yet, the speaker continued, there does exist excellent poetry written by Theosophists. A masterly example of such work is "Forest Meditation," a book of poetry by Dr. James H. Cousins which Mrs. Parkinson commenced to read and illuminate by remarks.

THE FIRST POEM

The first poem was one of Nature. A beautiful picture was given of life in the forest, of a twilight amidst the things of Nature. In allegorical language, Mrs. Parkinson explained, it mourned the inability of those who experience the higher planes to tell in earthly language their experiences.

"Yet what in vision saw I starry clear
I cannot speak, they cannot hear;
For what upon the wing befell,
Winged unto wingless may not tell;
And secrets high and wise and old
Only with equals may be told."

VIEWPOINT OF LOVE

Then two poems were read out illustrating the Theosophical viewpoint of love. True love, it pointed out, bound its partners always together in thought. There is no parting between lovers as their thoughts are always of each other. Even after death to lives onward the love remains and grows ever stronger.

DEVOTIONAL POEM

Finally was read a devotional poem which deserves at least partial reproduction. It was entitled "Offering" being of an Indian Coolie woman who stopped at a wayside shrine to offer her handful of rice and a few Jasmine flowers, but she offered, beyond that, herself.

"And God said:
I accept your offering,
Sister: not the offered thing;
Not the rice and Jasmine flowers.
These my image-making Powers
Shaped and coloured from my stuff

Mild or tough
As my thought desired;
Beat and fired
In the furnace of my heart.
These are part
Of myself.
Who can gather peit
Out of offers
Flashed from his own coffers?

"Yet, beyond the offered thing,
I accept your offering;
Not (for bliss your proffered price)
Jasmine flowers and rice;
Though, for life's fair nourishment,
And for beauty sweetly spent,
These be good.
I accept your attitude.
I, who only live
While I give.
See in it a sign
Mirroring mine;
Warranty of sure persistence
Of existence
Set on lay
Simple, without flaw—
That which only takes,
Swells and breaks,
Only that which gives
Truly lives."

IDEAL OF SOCIETY

In those few words are beautifully expressed the Ideals of the Theosophical Society, concluded Mrs. Parkinson. To give knowledge, help and sympathy was the work of every Theosophist.

Some extracts on Nature Spirits and their work in healing were read and the public were reminded that next Thursday Mr. R. E. Laing would be giving a lecture on Yoga.

HAND IN HAND

The women of New York are according to our report printed on page 1 headed "Substitution," particularly delighted at a sentence passed by a magistrate of that city upon a man who had ill-treated his wife. The sentence is that he shall take her to the pictures and hold her hand throughout the performance.

We hope the women of New York may not be found to have rejoiced too soon. Let us look at the case with a cool eye. The husband is a pedlar of neckties.

Whether he wears one is not stated; but, if he does, it cannot be an old school tie, for he has little of the humane urbanity which the old school tie develops in its wearers. It is even possible, having regard to some of the neckties seen in trays and even in shop-windows in England, that his view of life has been jammed by the daily influence of colours neither lovely in themselves nor well matched with each other.

Be that as it may, he warms neither hand before the fire of life. He does not smoke. He will not go out in the evenings; and it is safe to assume that he is not the merriest company at home. He has no money for dissipation, and he is virtuously aggrieved when a little dissipation is recommended to him. On the evidence before us, what sort of a hand is he likely to make at holding hands at the movies? For this is not a sentence which, like sitting in the stocks or in the chair, serves itself. Its success or failure as a deterrent depends wholly on the manner of its performance.

Other things will affect that manner besides the character of the performer.

Throughout what films will Mr. Rubenstein have to hold the hand of Mrs. Rubenstein? Should the principal picture have passages pathetic and sob-making—Miss Shirley Temple, say, in "The Littlest Rebel"—all may be well. Husband and wife, still holding hands, will weep on each other's shoulder and go home a melted and a devoted pair.

A good "comic," too—but that we suspect Mr. Rubenstein of being an agapist—might break down the barrier. But suppose that fate (or crafty choice) should decree the story of one of those tremendous one-hundred-per-cent he American men who catch 'em young and treat 'em rough, or one of those too fascinatingly mischievous gallants who smile their impudent way through the hearts of queens and of waitresses, what, under such influences, is Mrs. Rubenstein likely to get but at best a very frozen mitt, and at worst—well, every schoolboy knows that there are ways of holding hands that neither express nor encourage affection.

Mrs. Rubenstein might do well to take a hint from Duke Ferdinand in "The Duchess of Malfi" and be prepared with a dummy hand.

Here's a hand to which you have vowed much love; the ring upon't you gave.

For if Mr. Rubenstein is sentenced to hold the hand of Mrs. Rubenstein throughout the per-

Mr. Baldwin: No, Sir. I am afraid I cannot add anything to my statement.

Mr. Tinker: Can the Prime Minister give us an indication when there is likely to be a statement, as everybody is anxious to have something definite at the earliest possible moment?

Mr. Baldwin: I recognise that anxiety, but I regret that I can say nothing more at the moment.

NO OFFICIAL STATEMENT

So far there has been no official statement as to issues which have arisen between the King and his Ministers. The "Times" parliamentary correspondent says that when matters have been made public it will probably be found that the King has expressed his desire to contract such a marriage as would require a special act of Parliament, that he has himself taken the initiative in asking whether such a measure can be passed, and that the Ministers after full consideration and consultation have replied that in their opinion it is impossible. The Ministers have been asked a question and have given their answer. —British Wireless.

NO MORGANATIC MARRIAGE

London, Dec. 4.

In the House of Commons today, Mr. Stanley Baldwin, replying to Mr. C. B. Atlee, said that suggestions appeared in certain organs of the press that if the King decided to marry his wife need not become Queen. These ideas were without any constitutional foundation. There was no such thing as a morganatic marriage known in our law. The Government was not prepared to introduce legislation to facilitate the King's proposed marriage.

Moreover, the matters to be dealt with are of common concern to the Commonwealth as a whole and such a change could not be effected without the assent of all Dominions. "I am satisfied from inquiries I made that assent would not be forthcoming. I felt it right to make this statement before adjournment of the House to-day in order to remove widespread misunderstanding. At the moment I have no other statement to make," said the Premier.—Reuter.

MRS. SIMPSON'S MOVEMENTS.

Paris, Dec. 4.
Mrs. Simpson is reported to have arrived at Rouen during the night en route to Paris.

Mrs. Simpson was accompanied by several plain-clothes detectives when she left Dieppe at 2.50 a.m. It is believed she is motor-ing to the Riviera.—Reuter.

VISITED FAR EAST

London, Dec. 4.
Mrs. Simpson, when Mrs. Spencer, stayed in Peking about ten years ago with Mr. Rodger and his wife. Mr. Rodger being First Secretary at the United States Legation. It is believed that she has visited Shanghai.

formance, equally Mrs. Rubenstein is sentenced to have her hand held by Mr. Rubenstein. And how is the sentence to be enforced?

Will one of those abrupt and domineering plain-clothes policemen, familiar in the crook plays be told off to sit next to Mr. and Mrs. Rubenstein and fix a steely, a handcuff eye on their joined hands?

With such a neighbour, the fondest pair of lovers would find holding hands a punishment indeed.

The more we consider the case, the more prudent does it seem to resist the temptation to be hopeful. It was, no doubt, with intent to be merciful that the magistrate deferred the execution; but meanwhile both hand-holder and hand-holdee have time to brood over the coming clasp and to grow more and more nervous about it.

Punishment is meant as a deterrent. Suppose the punishment should deter Mr. Rubenstein from ever wanting to hold Mrs. Rubenstein's hand again?

HELENA MAY CONCERT

Large Gathering Entertained

A delightful concert was held at the Helena May Institute last night at 9.30, where a large gathering was charmingly entertained. Much applause was deservedly awarded to many participants who rendered most successful items.

The concert opened with three songs by Mr. Maurice Barton which was followed by piano solos and madrigals rendered by Miss Eva Turner and Mrs. A. J. Bennett (Sopranos), Mr. E. O'N. Shaw and Mr. M. W. Scott (Tenors), Miss A. L. Lock and Miss J. Flex (Contraltos), the Rev. H. W. Barnes and Mr. W. M. Barton (Basses).

After the interval, Mr. Maurice Barton again delighted the audience with three songs which were well received. Miss Carolyn Braga's two piano solos were the next items and her charming rendering gained prolonged applause. This was followed by part songs by the group of singers.

$327,000 "SILVER LINK"

OPENED

Kincardine's New Bridge

Britain's longest road bridge and Scotland's latest and greatest arterial highway—the $327,000 road bridge crossing the Forth at Kincardine—was formally opened recently with brilliant ceremony, states "The Bulletin."

The thousands of spectators from all parts of the country who had gathered to witness the inaugural proceedings could not fail to be impressed by the beauty of this latest contribution to Scotland's traffic problem.

Against the mist-enshrouded landscape, river, and rain-laden skies, the structure in its coat of aluminum paint, glistened like a silver streak reaching to the shore of Fife and Stirling, and looked every inch "a silver link of good fellowship binding the peoples of the North and South," as Lord Elgin described it.

Accommodation was reserved in special enclosures erected on the bridge for 1000 invited guests.

"BULLETIN" VAN DOES ITS BIT

Loudspeakers were put up at every available point, so that no part of the ceremony was lost to the crowd, who threatened at times to burst the barriers.

The regular ferry-boat took the Dunfermline City Pipers to the central swing stand, and from there musical selections were played. "The Bulletin" radio van also did its bit in keeping the crowd in good humor.

The guard of honour on the bridge was formed by detachments of the Boys' Brigade from Fife, Stirling and Falkirk, under the command of Captain Livingstone, Dunfermline.

PLATFORM PARTY

At 11.30 a.m. the platform party took their places on the dais. The party consisted of the Earl of Elgin, convener of Fife county; the Earl of Mar and Kellie, convener of Clackmannan county; Mr. C. E. Horsburgh, convener of Stirling county; the Rt. Rev. Professor D. Lamont, Moderator of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland; the Countess of Elgin; the Countess of Mar; Sir Alexander Gibb; Mr. J. R. Dixon; Mr. W. H. Budgett, representing the Ministry of Transport of Scotland; Sheriff Black, Stirling; Sheriff Principal Fenton; Provost M'Kay, Dunfermline; Mr. M. W. Scott (Tenors), Miss A. L. Lock and Miss J. Flex (Contraltos), the Rev. H. W. Barnes and Mr. W. M. Barton (Basses).

After Dr. Lamont had dedicated the bridge to the glory of God and for the uses it had to service, Lord Elgin, who presided, spoke on "The worth in the work of solving the problems of the roads."

At a given signal the three county conveners pressed switches simultaneously that set the central swing span in operation. This span, the largest in Europe, is 364ft. long and weighs 1600 tons. The portal gates guarding the road passage were raised by the Earl of Mar, and Mr. Horsburgh broke the Union Jack on the flag-staff over the gateway, which bears the inscription, "Kincardine Road Bridge."

After the ceremony Lord Elgin entertained 100 of the guests to lunch at Broomhall.

AIR RAIDS ORDER OF THE DAY

GOVERNMENT AIRMEN ALSO ACTIVE

Rebels Bomb Three Districts In Madrid

London, December 4. Air raids are the order of the day in the Spanish civil war with Government planes flying over insurgent lines in the Puzuelo sector in the morning. In the first two raids, the Government airmen's aim was wild, but the third raid was attended by possible damage to insurgent forces.

Government forces claim to have brought down an insurgent plane at Talavera, while the insurgents declared that they bombed three districts in Madrid with considerable damage.

FRANCO'S WARNING

London, Dec. 3. General Francisco Franco, the insurgent leader, has warned British and other foreign shipping of his intention to bombard the area between Cape San Antonio, north of Alicante, and Murbella, west of Malaga.

There will be frequent aerial attacks both day and night, he states, on presumed enemy ships in Spanish territorial waters. Mines will be laid in the harbour mouths of this zone, it is added.—Reuter's Bulletin Service.

FRESH ATROCITIES

Fresh atrocities have been reported of the Anarchists in Barcelona, according to reports here, which add that the Anarchists discovered the hiding place of 150 Fascists whom they arrested, but promised release later, if a large sum of money was paid to the Anarchist leader Oskar. The money was duly handed over, but the Fascists, instead of being set free, were put on board a ship, under the pretence of being sent to Marseilles. It transpires that 90 of the prisoners were then shot, but nothing is known of the remaining 60.—Transocean News Service.

NO LULL IN FIGHTING

Paris, Dec. 3. The battle for Madrid continues with unabated violence, and the attacks and counter attacks of the opposing forces follow one another without even a temporary lull in fighting.

FRANCE'S FOREIGN POLICY

To Help Britain If Attacked

("Hong Kong Daily Press" Special)

Paris, Dec. 4. Foreign Minister Delbos will answer various interpellations in the Chamber on Saturday on France's foreign policy, according to informed circles, which add that the Foreign Minister will unambiguously state it to be France's duty to come to the aid of Britain should she be attacked. It is stressed that the Minister's speech will thus be a reply to Mr. Eden's recent speech in Leamington. Some quarters affirm that M. Delbos will give the following indications as to the French foreign policy:

1. France considers the "League Covenant" as basis of her foreign policy.
2. France will adhere to the agreements it has concluded in East and Central Europe.
3. As regards a new West European agreement, France will only accept a solution of an agreement with these already concluded agreements.
4. As regards the situation in Spain, France will continue her policy of non-intervention.

It is further stated that the French Government is determined to retain the principles of freedom of the seas and to defend the French interests in the Mediterranean.—Transocean News Service.

WORLD FAIR IN PARIS

("Hong Kong Daily Press" Special)

Paris, Dec. 4. The rumours which owe their origin to the statements made by the vice-president of the Paris Municipality in a lecture on Wednesday, to the effect that the World Fair, which is scheduled to open in Paris on May 1, 1937, would probably have to be postponed till 1938, or only held incompletely, were categorically denied by the Chairman of the Paris World Fair Committee, Labbe, who declared that the Fair would be opened in full on schedule.

The vice-president of the Paris Municipality had stated that the continual labour upheavals and strikes as well as the 40-hour week were the causes preventing the Fair being opened on time. In this connection it is recalled that who was termed as the "soul of the organisation of the World Fair" City Councillor Francois Latour was forced to resign because of lack of sympathy with the Popular Front Government, and it was then feared by many observers that the Fair would not run as smoothly as with him.—Transocean News Service.

PLANE WITHOUT A PILOT

Remains Over An Hour In The Air

Paris, Dec. 2. A record unique in the annals of aviation was established near Bourges when a plane remained in the air for over an hour after the pilot had jumped out.

He left the plane with the engines running at full speed, and the plane descended at times as low as to altitudes of 20 metres, and, after the record time, finally crashed.—Transocean News Service.

ROOSEVELT AT MONTE VIDEO

Great Welcome Accorded

Monte Video, Dec. 3. A most enthusiastic reception was given to President Roosevelt on his arrival here to-day in Buenos Aires, running crowds holding up the Presidential procession many times. It is understood that a dozen United States plain-clothes detectives wearing the insignia of the local force were among the Uruguayan detectives surrounding the President's car, some of them being on the running board.

Discussing the Pan-American Conference with pressmen President Roosevelt said that the brilliance of its opening, made him most hopeful of its results. He refused to envisage the possibility of the conference not attaining the result for which it was called.

President Roosevelt stressed the need for faster and better transport by sea and road to secure the large tourist exchange required to improve the economic relations between the United States and the other American republics. Asked if he thought it advisable for the American nations to adopt a common policy with regard to immigration, the President said that he had not yet studied this, but he pointed out that the Americans were beginning to think alike, and common action would follow naturally.—Reuter.

LEGALISATION OF EUTHANASIA

Doctor's Objection To Bill

The objections to legalising euthanasia—the action of inducing an easy death—to sufferers from incurable diseases were referred to by Dr. G. Roche Lynch, the Home Office analyst, in a discussion at a meeting of the Humanitarian Society, states "The Daily Telegraph."

Dr. Lynch, whose speech is reported in the "Lancet," emphasised that he was speaking as a private person and not in any official capacity. He discussed the provision of the bill on euthanasia which had been introduced by Lord Ponsonby in the House of Lords.

There was no doubt, he said, that to-day euthanasia was practised by medical men in this country. He had no reason to think that it was not done in a proper and honourable way. Was it not better, he asked, to leave undisturbed a practice which had been carried out from time immemorial?

ELABORATE REQUIREMENTS. Assuming, however, that there was need for legislation on euthanasia, the provisions of Lord Ponsonby's bill would, in his opinion, defeat its objects by its elaborate requirements.

There must be first an application in documentary form by the sufferer, with the necessary witnesses to the signature, and then two independent medical certificates.

After these had been sent to the referee he must then personally visit the patient, and later, on an appointed day, the euthanasia administrator would visit the patient and administer the lethal drug. This meant, said Dr. Lynch, that the patient, having expressed his desire, must await, in an agony of suspense which might be likened to that of a condemned criminal, the actual release from life.

CANADA'S RADIO

New Broadcasting Corporation ERECTING HIGH POWER STATIONS

Ottawa, Canada. The new Canadian Broadcasting Corporation which has succeeded the Canadian Radio Commission in the control of radio broadcasting in Canada will probably erect high power stations across the Dominion. Finances will be the determining factor about this but this is the objective of the corporation, according to Mr. Leonard Brockington, chairman of the corporation. "It is our wish to maintain an efficient and widespread service," said Mr. Brockington in a broadcast speech, "and to afford as many citizens as possible, including those in distant places, the opportunity to listen to the most acceptable programmes available."

A general coverage survey of existing stations, which shortly will be made by the general manager of the corporation, Mr. Gladstone Murray. Mr. Murray held an important executive post in the British Broadcasting Corporation until he was appointed to the Canadian corporation.

The Canadian corporation has many difficult problems to combat before it can perfect a system for Canada. Canada is a vast country with only the southern sections well populated. There are many isolated posts throughout the far North and these posts must be supplied with entertaining and interesting programmes. It is hoped, however, that as soon as the possible best of foreign broadcasts as well as good programmes from Canada will be supplied all sections of the country through Canadian stations.

RAILWAY PROGRESS IN CHINA

Part Played By Krupp Locomotives

("Hong Kong Daily Press" Special)

Berlin, Dec. 4. The world famous Iron and Steel works of Friedrich Krupp in Essen, Ruhr, which this year celebrates its 125th anniversary, devotes the December number of its house organ to describing the part played by its railway and locomotives in the development of China. The title page carried a picture entitled "Krupp Locomotives in China," and shows how a narrow gauge engine is unloaded from shipside and placed on rails to be brought to the starting point of the Tungpu railway, where it is unpacked, assembled and set to work.

Other illustrations show how old and new China are still so often found next to each other, the former being rapidly transformed through development, regularisation and modernisation of railway traffic. Another picture shows the locomotives for the Changtai railway arriving by normal gauge tracks, but the most striking picture is that of an enormous locomotive with tender for the Tientsin-Pukow Railway.—Transocean News Service.

KING'S EMPIRE TOUR

Arrangements for the King's Empire tour referred to by Mr. Mackenzie King will be discussed at the time of the Coronation, states the "Daily Telegraph."

This will be the most convenient opportunity, as the Empire Premier will arrive in London a few weeks before the Coronation for the Imperial Conference.

The claims of the Dominions will be considered in detail and the dates of the King's tours arranged. The Dominions cannot, however, expect visits quite as early as Mr. Mackenzie King's statement would appear to suggest is contemplated.

If the King goes to India next cold weather he will hardly be able to visit any of the Dominions earlier than the autumn of 1938. The time factor enters into the question. A Royal progress of this kind will obviously require very careful and unhurried preparation.

SINO-JAPANESE DIFFERENCES

CURIOUS INCIDENT IN NANKING

Document Forced Into Hands Of Foreign Minister

Nanking, December 4. A curious incident occurred yesterday evening when Mr. Kawagoe called on Mr. Chang Chun at the latter's invitation in order to discuss the landing of the Japanese marines in Tsingtao. Later Mr. Chang Chun vigorously protested against this action and demanded the immediate withdrawal of the marines and the release of the persons arrested by them.

Mr. Kawagoe asked him to resume discussion on various other Sino-Japanese differences. Mr. Chang Chun declined to do so pending settlement of the Suiyuan and Tsingtao situation, whereupon, according to a Foreign Office spokesman, Mr. Kawagoe produced and read a document purporting to be a resume of the principal points discussed on other previous interviews.

Mr. Chang Chun refused to accept the document because he considered it at variance with what had transpired at the preceding meetings. When he departed, Mr. Kawagoe insisted on leaving behind the document, but later Mr. Chang Chun returned it to the Japanese Embassy by messenger.

A Japanese communique issued later described the document as a resume of the point of agreement between China and Japan, but the action of Mr. Chang Chun makes it clear that he does not accept this point as having been agreed. The points mentioned are the establishment of direct Sino-Japanese air traffic, revision of the Chinese import tariff, control of anti-Japanese activities of Koreans in Chinese employment, Japanese advisors in Nanking, and the enforcement of a drastic curb on popular anti-Japanese activities.—Reuter.

CRITICAL TURN

Nanking, Dec. 3. The Sino-Japanese situation has taken a critical turn. The tension is a result of the landing at Tsingtao of 1,000 Japanese marines in connection with the lock-out of 25,000 mill workers by the Japanese owners.

An energetic protest has been lodged with the Japanese Embassy by the Chinese Foreign Office.

In an interview with the Japanese Ambassador, Mr. Shigeru Kawagoe, this evening, the Chinese Foreign Minister, Mr. Chang Chun demanded the immediate withdrawal of the marines and the release of all persons illegally arrested by them.

Mr. Chang declined to discuss any Sino-Japanese questions at the present time, but it is understood that Mr. Kawagoe insisted on making a long statement.—Reuter.

ENGLAND-AUSTRALIA TEST MATCH

Wonderful Recovery By Visitors

Brisbane, December 4. After being three wickets down for 20 runs in the first Test match against Australia, England made a wonderful recovery and at the close of play, the score stood at 263 for 6 wickets.

Leyland, with 126, was the highest scorer of the day, Barnett also contributing a useful 69. McCormick, who took three wickets earlier in the day, had to retire owing to indisposition and will not be taking part in to-morrow's play.

The weather was overcast and threatening when G. O. Allen and D. G. Bradman went out to toss, but there was a crowd of 10,000 present when Worthington and Barnett left the pavilion to open the England innings on a perfect wicket.

The injured W. A. Brown is twelfth man for Australia, while Flock is acting in a similar capacity for the English team. There was a dramatic start, Worthington being caught off the first ball of the match, skying an attempted "hook off" McCormick into the safe hands of Oldfield. 0-1-0.

Fagg remained while 20 runs were added and then was well caught by Oldfield as the result of a snick on the leg side. 20-2-4. Hammond, while attempting to defend himself, gave Robinson a sister at square leg. 20-3-0. McCormick, who was bowling at a very fast pace, claimed the first three wickets for 16 runs.

Leyland then joined Barnett and the pair added 45 runs before lunch was taken at 85 for 3.

Ames played forward to a leg break in the second over after tea and was caught by Chipperfield off Ward. He was 45 minutes at the wickets during which time he scored 24 runs including three boundaries. 162-5-24.

LEYLAND OUT

The 200 was up in 245 minutes. Leyland in attempting to take a leg break off Ward was unfortunate to play on to his wicket. He knocked 11 boundaries in a magnificent effort under difficult circumstances and succeeded by dogged perseverance. His 126 runs were made in 251 minutes. 252-6-126. Hardstaff's 97 minutes at the wicket was featured by stubborn batting which yielded

McCORMICK NOT PLAYING TO-DAY

E. L. McCormick, the Victorian fast bowler, who got the wickets of Worthington (0), Fagg (4) and Hammond (0), early in the England innings, retired from the game with the score at 108. He was suffering from either a chill or lumbago and W. A. Brown, the New South Wales batsman, who had to be content with being the twelfth man, owing to an injury sustained on the eve of the First Test, substituted for him.

It was later stated that McCormick's complaint was diagnosed as a chill in the back. He will not be playing to-day (Saturday) but it is hoped that after treatment, he will be able to resume his place in the team on Monday.

27 runs including five boundaries. He has still to bat to-morrow, while Robins is 6 not out. The following are the scores:—
Worthington, c Oldfield, b McCormick, 0
McCormick, c Oldfield, b O'Reilly, 69
Fagg, c Oldfield, b McCormick, 4
Hammond, c Robinson, b McCormick, 0
Leyland, b Ward, 126
Ames, c Chipperfield, b Ward, 24
Hardstaff, not out, 27
Robins, not out, 6

Total (for 6 wickets), 263.—Reuter.

"STILL A GOING CONCERN"

Lord Cecil On The League: Unwisely Led.
But Far From Destroyed

"SLUMP" FORESEEN AT ITS FORMATION

"People say that the League of Nations has failed; I do not agree," said Lord Cecil in a speech at the National Liberal Club recently, according to a Home paper. "It has been unwisely led by some of the Great Powers, including ourselves. It is true that its handling of the Far Eastern and the Abyssinian questions, not to speak of disarmament, was a great failure and has undoubtedly shaken the position of the League. But it is very far from destroyed."

Lord Cecil recalled that when he and others were forming the League at Paris they all foresaw that, after a period, which they put at ten years, the force of the universal horror of war would begin to pass away, and that for that reason among others they had been anxious to create that permanent organisation for the League, which had been criticised as unnecessary and unduly rigid. They wanted by that machinery to keep the League alive during the inevitable slump which they foresaw for it. "Nevertheless," he said, "the League is still active, a going concern, and it is still capable by appropriate leadership of being revived into an effective protection against war."

ISOLATION

Lord Cecil had been considering the many political questions which might easily lead to situations from which war might seem to be the only exit, and he was discussing the alternative policies which this country might pursue. He rejected armed isolation out of hand as an impossible policy. The suggestion of its supporters, he said, was that if we left Europe alone Europe would leave us alone. But in that case no European nation would come to our help if we found ourselves in difficulties.

Could we be sure that no nation, or even combination of nations, would make an attack on our Empire, to which an Italian had referred the other day as "formidable booty"? Our old invulnerability had disappeared since the development of air warfare, and the fighting in Madrid had demonstrated that there is nothing nowadays which a combatant will not do. "If we are to rely solely on ourselves," he concluded, "we are taking a risk which we have no right to take, and therefore I think that isolation is an impossible course for us to pursue."

Lord Cecil next examined the policy of complete pacifism as now, recently expressed by Mr. Bertrand Russell—abolition of our fighting service "disposal" of the Crown colonies and India, and so forth, which, Lord Cecil pointed out, would mean the abandonment of all the populations for which we had made ourselves responsible. His only comment was "if you lie down in front of a man it is true that you prevent him from knocking you down, but you do not prevent him from kicking you."

A POLICY OF DESPAIR

He turned next to the policy of armaments alliances, and the balance of power, which he condemned as a policy of despair. "What we want is to avoid war," he said. "These things at the best mean that we have a good chance, or victory." He had just heard Lord Halifax saying in the House of Lords that one could not expect countries to fight in a war in which their vital interests were not affected, and his comment was: "Our vital interests are involved in almost any war which may take place in Europe."

There remained a fourth policy—that of the League of Nations. It differed from the policy of alliances in that it united the nations instead of splitting them apart. He expressed his conviction that the League was still capable of effective action in spite of various defections. "I am satisfied," he said, "that the countries still in the League, if they exert their power, are sufficiently strong to preserve peace."

In addition to providing collective security against war we ought, he said, to be using our peace machinery to try to set right all the differences and grievances that separated different countries. We had the machinery, though it might not be complete. Again, we could help to make articulate the desire for peace of the peoples in all countries without exception," he said, "are passionately anxious for peace." In this country we had constitutional machinery for making known the wishes of the people, not only by elections, but by agitation, speaking, and writing, and we had had an expression of British popular desire for peace through the Peace Ballot. If similar expressions could be obtained from other national populations it would be a great step towards assuring peace, and for this purpose the International Peace Campaign had been started.

BRITISH POLICY

Apart from all that, however, he was sure that the most essential thing was to have a clear and definite statement of British policy. "There is no such danger to peace," he said, "as a doubt where one of the Great Powers stands. I think it would be wise that operations of the League should begin when war seems imminent, and not wait until war breaks out. I was glad to hear Lord Halifax say that in the House, and I hope that the Government will act upon it. It has not always been true in the past that such admirable sentiments have found complete expression."

"Most of all I think it of the greatest importance that we should make it clear to the world that we really mean business about the Covenant. We are prepared to carry out our duties with the others in preventing war or stopping it after it has broken out, and whatever steps are necessary for that purpose we should be prepared to attack, provided we have proper support from the other members of the League. I think a clear statement of that kind would have an immensely pacifying effect in Europe."

Lord Cecil added that he did not say that rearmament was wrong, but that it was only a means to an end. It was a defensive and not a constructive policy.

OXFORD'S KEEN OARSMEN

Plenty Of Useful Material

TIDEWAY TRAINING AND COACHES

With the Light Fours over and the University Sculls well under way, J. S. Lewes, the Oxford President, must be near making up his mind as to the composition of the Trial Eights, and may have a fair idea about the University crew as well. It is a healthy sign of returning enthusiasm at Oxford that fifteen entered for the Sculls, most of them capable oarsmen, for your sculler at least is a good waterman," writes C. Venables in the "Morning Post."

Meanwhile, Lewes is fairly combating the 15s for likely material for his Trial Eights, and over a hundred men will be tried out before the crews are actually made up. The very fact that so many men can be considered as possibilities is encouraging, and it means that the standard of college rowing is definitely on the up-grade. It is particularly satisfactory to find so many Oriel men figuring in the trial boats, because, though they have been Head of the River for four years, Oriel have not received the recognition from past presidents which would seem to have been their due. Oriel's particular style of rowing may not find great favour at Oxford, but one cannot deny that it is no mean feat for a College Boat Club to be Head of the River in Eight Weeks and be joint winners of the Light Fours as well. Incidentally, it seems a pity that Oriel and Trinity did not row off their dead heat. "Curiously enough Jesus have just achieved this duel honour at Cambridge."

A GOOD OMEN

Oxford are, apparently, hoping to take a leaf out of Cambridge's book and spend at least a month on the Tideway—a fortnight at Chiswick or some such place and a fortnight at Putney. But the trouble is that term does not end till March 13, and as that seems to be the only date on which the race can be held from Putney to Mortlake, it is going to be very difficult to fit in the four weeks' sojourn on the Tideway.

G. O. Nickalls has been invited to undertake some of the coaching during the last month of training.

RIFLE SHOOTING

Triangular Competition At Stonecutters

By the courtesy of the Naval Authorities, a very enjoyable afternoon was spent on the Stonecutters Range on Thursday, by teams of 12 firs representing the Naval Range Staff, The East Lancs. Regt. and the Blisley Rifle Club, R.U. Rifles. The shooting was done with the Service Rifle at 200, 500 and 600 yards, and the best 8 scores in each team counted.

The result was a win for the Blisley Rifle Club, R.U.R. with the East Lancs. team a very good second.

The final placing resulted as follows:—
R.U.R. Blisley Club 681
East Lancs. Regt. 625
Range Staff 604

The highest individual scorers in each team were:—
R.U.R. (Lt. Ratcliffe) 89
East Lancs. Regt. (Sergt. Jones) 88
Range Staff (Capt. Carless) 86

At the conclusion of the shoot, the Naval Range Staff very kindly entertained the three teams to a very enjoyable tea in the "Marksmen's Arms," when those who were "counted out" on the Range got an opportunity to explain to their team, how they forgot to look at the flag, etc.

POPULAR LIGHT CABIN PLANE

Hundreds In Use All Over The World

London, Dec. 3.

The De Havilland Company has made a cut of £100 in the price of its popular Honnet Moth light cabin biplane, of which over a hundred are already in daily use all over the world.

At £775, the machine's detail finish is stated to be even superior to the 1935 model. In touring form and with fuel on board for more than 600 miles nonstop in calm air the Honnet Moth carries two persons and approximately 130 pounds of luggage at 18 miles to the gallon—a better fuel consumption rate than is reached by most medium or high-power automobiles. It has a Gipsy Major 130 horse-power four-cylinder engine and cruises at about 105 miles an hour.—
British Wireless.

Perhaps that is an omen for an Oxford victory, because Nickalls was President in 1923, when Oxford gained their only success since the War. A W. Rathbone, who worked such wonders with the last Oxford crew, will again be in charge of the polishing-up process during the last fortnight. Though Lewes is in touch with two or three famous coaches, no decision has yet been reached as to who will be responsible for the early training.

LONDON LOSING POPULATION

200,000 In Four Years

The population of the County of London declined by over 200,000 during the four years 1931-35, according to a report issued by the London County Council.

The estimated population in the middle of 1935 was 4,185,200, compared with 4,397,003 at the 1931 census. The decrease in the ten years, 1921-31, however, was only 87,520.

The boroughs with the largest populations in mid-1935 were Wandsworth (343,309), Islington (304,100), and Lambeth (279,000). Those with the smallest populations, apart from the City, were Holborn (35,400), Stoke Newington (50,210), and Chelsea (57,320).

The county birth rate in 1935 was 13.3 per 1,000, and the death rate 11.4. Poplar had the highest birth rate with 18.4, and the City the lowest with 7.4. Chelsea and Finsbury had the highest death rate with 12.6, and Lewisham the lowest with 9.9.

The net annual value of the county, at April 6 of this year, was £85,063,211, and the rateable value was £60,513,933. The rateable value works out at £14 8s. per head.

Westminster has the highest rateable value, £10,441,146, and the City comes next with £8,198,882, giving a value per head in the City of £840. This is exactly ten times the rateable value per head in Westminster. The borough with the lowest rateable value is Stoke Newington, £427,283.

GAME DISPLAY FROM DALY

Roderick Wins A Good Fight

A vast blue curtain drawn across the interior of the Empress Stadium reduced the arena to half its size, so making an excellent setting for the ring when the new National Sporting Club held their second "night," recently states Peter Lawless in the "London Morning Post."

The attendance was not big, but the weekly staging of good honest to goodness fighting must eventually draw all true lovers of the game to this pleasant and accessible centre.

On all sides one saw the famous faces of those who have helped to keep the greatest of games alive through difficult times. In the chief bout of the programme Ernie Roderick, Liverpool, beat George Daly, Blackfriars, in a 12-round bout at 10st. 8lb.

Roderick was a clear winner, but he had to bring all his toughness and ability to a crowded affair, for Daly was for ever carrying the fight to him, making light of punishment, and forcing a more powerful opponent to mix matters. Daly's chief weapon, as usual, was a flickering left, and he used it to full advantage. Roderick at times countered with a right to the jaw and with telling effect, without, however, fully stopping his game pursuer.

A rousing pace was maintained throughout, and Roderick, after being warned for hitting low in the seventh round, set about the affair with increased fury and built up

GERMAN ACROBAT'S STATEMENT

Paris, Dec. 3.

The German acrobat and airman, Fieseler, who spent a few days here to see the great aviation exhibition made certain declarations to the "Intransigent" with regard to the rumours in circulation that he, Fieseler, had been in Spain, serving on the side of the Nationalists. Fieseler declared that he has never been in Spain, hence could not possibly have "been wounded there as was alleged. Fieseler added that he had nothing to do in Spain, his activities in the aviation industry in Cassel were appropriate his whole time and energies. In Paris Fieseler has been spending much of his time in company of the famous French airman Detrotydat, who was able to confirm the statement that Fieseler had not been in Spain.—

GOLF MATCH WON AT 54TH HOLE

A golf match that began at Hartsbourne Manor (Herts) as an 18-hole affair was decided at the 54th hole.

It was the final of the Marquess of Lorne Bowl, and the players were M.G. Stuart Fox (3) and I.
W. N. Speight (12).

All square at the end of the first round, the finalist went out again in the afternoon, but came in still all square.

They adjourned the game for a week, and went out again.
At the last green they were all square again, but this time
Stuart Fox sank a putt of six feet to win.

In the two previous rounds a putt on the last green squared the match, Stuart Fox being dorny
one in the first and Speight dorny one in the second.

Another curious feature of the match was that in each of the first two rounds Fox, giving a stroke at the 7th, a bogey 5 hole, did the hole in 3 and won it against his opponent's 4 net.

COAL SALESMEN

Teaching Them To Be
"Go-Getters"

Coal utilisation can be considered from the angle of the coal user or of that of the coal producer. At first sight the two appear to be divergent, the coal user desiring to use as little coal as possible to a given work, whilst the coal producer desires to sell as much coal as possible.

Basically, however, coal is not different from other commodities in the sense that the best method of increasing the sales is to cater for the consumer's requirements. The Coal Utilisation Council is doing its best to bring this spirit into the British coal trade, but the measure of success that has attended its efforts has not yet produced anything akin to a revolution in our methods of selling coal.

There does not appear to be anything of a similar kind elsewhere, and the fact that the second of these courses, in 1935, was attended by 215 men from 18 different States indicates that the venture is meeting with success. The Coal Utilisation Council has taken in hand the education of coal salesmen. In this country, and it may be that at some future date a place will be found for an ambitious course such as that sponsored by the University of Illinois.

It is doubtful, however, whether the majority of British coalfield and coal merchants are yet suffi-

From the subject-matter of these addresses it will be concluded that the coal industry of the United States is more alert than we are and more appreciative of certain aspects of salesmanship. The American idea expressed thus in the opening of a paper by Mr. H.A. Glover: "To do a modern merchandising job in domestic heating with solid fuels the retail coal merchant must interest himself in every phase of heating. He must be in a position to really serve the householder—whether it be to sell him a ton of special, trade-marked, guaranteed coal at the yard, delivered at the curb, equipped, wheeled, or carried into the basement; whether it be to clean, repair, or service the furnace, to sell or rent and instal automatic burning equipment, or what not. The day is past when the consumer has to go to the dealer and just buy coal; he can and will do something else for his heat unless he can get just exactly the service he wants from the retail coal merchant.

In his own expressive phrase, the coal-man of America is a "go-getter."

EARLY ASTIR

London, Dec. 4. King Edward was early astir after snatching about four hours' sleep, but he was not seen taking his early morning stroll in the gardens of Fort Belvedere as is the usual practice.

The intense activity in Downing Street was resumed this morning prior to the Cabinet meeting which was held in the Commons before the House met. The visitors at No. 10 Downing Street included the Private Secretary to the Duke of York.

Reuter's Bulletin Service.

THE PEOPLE WANT THEIR KING

Abdication Out Of The Question.

London, Dec. 4.

The first reaction to the statement on the situation is ameliorated (which is issued here by the Press Association) as a result of the proposal which is now being considered providing a way out which would be found acceptable to all and throws light on Mr. Winston Churchill's request in the Commons to Mr. Baldwin yesterday asking him to give an assurance that no irrevocable step will be taken before a formal statement has been made in Parliament and Mr. Baldwin's promise to consider the question.

The growing popular reluctance to see the King abdicate is found in the expression of several national papers with big circulations this morning.

The "Daily Mail" referring to the Albert Hall meeting last night, at which a gathering of 7,000 cheered the King, and sang the National Anthem with unusual fervour, says that abdication is out of the question because its possibilities of mischief are endless and the effect on the Empire would be calamitous, depriving the Commonwealth of a ruler who has exactly the gifts and knowledge required for its service in a period of unprecedented international crisis.

It must never happen. The King and his Ministers must find a way out, which they can do if they leave no avenue unexplored. The people want their King. The nation's heart goes out to him who served the Empire so faithfully and zealously.

MUST NOT BE GOODBYE

The "Daily Express" asks: "Are we to lose our King or keep him? He knows the answer that the people want to hear, but it must not be goodbye for the citizens of these shores would say that word only with hearts loaded with grief and heads bowed in sorrow."

The "News Chronicle" says: "There is evidence of growing sympathy for the King in the exceedingly difficult choice confronting him. There is a widespread feeling that his abdication from the throne would be a calamity. Were some solution found acceptable to the King and his Ministers, there is no doubt it would be received with great relief by the mass of British people. The country would only be a loser by any hasty decision depriving the Britain and Empire of a King who has won their loyalty and affection."

PUBLIC FEELINGS

London, Dec. 4.

While the public reaction in the constitutional issue as reflected by the kingdom's press exhibits natural anxiety together with a general desire that the country will not long be kept in the dark, Mr. Baldwin's assurance that constitutional difficulty does not at present exist is hopefully interpreted as meaning that no direct conflict will arise between the King's wishes and Ministers' advice.

In the meanwhile comment remains temperate, full of warm affection and sympathy for the King, and in the most responsible papers it is indicative that the decision rests between abdication or compliance with the Ministers' advice.

It is generally assumed that no statement will be forthcoming before Monday, whatever the King's decision.

PROPOSAL CONSIDERED

London, Dec. 4.

Indications in well-informed quarters are that as a result of last night's events, when the King got in touch with his mother and brothers as well as the Premier, the situation is now considerably ameliorated. It is

Most nations were now alive to the necessity of sports in raising the standard of health and greater encouragement was given to all healthy pursuits. Such a move as proposed by H.K. the Governor would have beneficial effects in this direction.

Regarding summer-time, the practice as proposed should also be allowed to stand. "As far as the Chinese business community is concerned," stated Mr. Tso, "I do not think it will be affected. But one man's meat is another man's poison, and shipping routes, etc., have got to be considered also."

believed that a proposal which it is hoped will be acceptable to all concerned—the King, Cabinet and Dominion Governments—is now under consideration. Mr. Baldwin is consulting the High Commissioners to-day. It is unlikely, however, that any public pronouncement will be made during the day.

SOUTH AFRICAN CONCERN

London, Dec. 4.

Great prominence is given here to the Dominion aspect of the constitutional crisis. The "Cape Times" in a leader refers to "constitutional aspects which are the deep concern of each of the Dominions as well as Great Britain." It says: "In terms of the Statute of Westminster the assent of all Dominion Parliaments as well as the United Kingdom Parliament would in the unhappy event of abdication be required for any change in the law of succession."

The newspaper stresses that it is the right if not the positive duty of Dominion Governments to tender advice to His Majesty and adds that the advice of Ministers in each of the Dominions as well as the United Kingdom will in all probability be unanimous.

The "Cape Times" also stressing this aspect of the situation, says it might mean a terribly serious constitutional crisis would arise in the United Kingdom in the unhappy and almost unbelievable event of His Majesty acting in conflict with the advice of his Ministers which would be repeated in each of the Dominions.

COMMONWEALTH SUPPORT

Canberra, Dec. 4.

The Cabinet is understood to have informally agreed that, if the necessity arose, the Commonwealth would give the fullest support to any action the British Government decided necessary to meet the situation.

Monday's meeting of the Coronation Committee has been postponed indefinitely in view of the atmosphere of uncertainty and apprehension.

INTENTIONS UNCHANGED

London, Dec. 4.

The "Daily Telegraph" states to-day it understands that despite representations of the Cabinet and the Dominions, the King's intentions remain unchanged, that there is no question of a compromise arrangement and should the King possibly decide to abdicate he will announce the fact in a message to Parliament.

The "Telegraph" also states that His Majesty has arranged for Mrs. Ernest Simpson, whom the King is reported to intend to marry, to fly to Paris this morning in his private plane.

ONE OBJECTION

The "Times" in an editorial says: "Let there be no misunderstanding about the character of the objection to such a marriage as the King has been understood to contemplate. It has diligently been put about in other countries and repeated here that the root of it lies in some old fashioned, conventional dislike of the marriage of a King to a commoner or an American. Nothing could possibly be further from the truth."

If His Majesty had been so fortunate as to win the affections of one of his subjects then the whole nation would have shared his happiness. There are also many daughters of America whom he might have married with similar approval and rejoicing. The one objection—and it is an overwhelming objection—to the marriage is that the lady in question already has two divorced husbands living."

DOMINION RIGHTS

London, Dec. 3.

Reuter understands that the Dominions are exercising their

SUCCESSFUL PARTY

R.A.M.C. Dance At Peninsula

The R.A.M.C. Association Dance which was held last night at the Peninsula Hotel was a most successful function, in which a large sprinkling of ex-members of the Corp attended.

It was due to the untiring efforts of the committee that the dance was such a success. Although the Association is in its infancy in the Colony it is becoming one of the most popular social bodies in Hong Kong.

The "turn" put on by Major Eccles and Captain Cruikshank was by far the most popular event of the evening. Their efforts at vaudeville was warmly received by the guests, and their portrayal of two charwomen was a magnificent burlesque.

Among those who attended were: Colonel H. H. Blake, O.B.E., and party, Lt.-Col. S. D. Reid and party, Lt.-Col. W. D. Arthur, M.B.E., Major and Mrs. Eccles, Captain and Mrs. Denning, Capt. Boyle, Capt. and Mrs. Burke.

The band of the East Lancashire Regiment, by kind permission of Major Dowling, played during the dance, and they were encored frequently.

The committee was composed of Mrs. A. A. Barton, and Messrs. R. S. Powlesland, Skinner, Humphreys, Wood, Kingston and Harris.

rights under the Statute of Westminster to make direct representations to King Edward on any subject they believe affects them. They are also in close touch with the Home Government. Their views are emphatic, and the King is faced not only by the Home Ministers but a number of separate entities representing the Empire's Governmental opinion.

The views expressed by the Dominion reflect the anxiety felt in those countries at the absence of any counter to the statements in the American press and the possible effects upon the Empire of the present situation, as they understand it, being allowed to continue. So much for the direct approaches to the King.

It is believed that much stronger views have been put to the Home Government, which have been told bluntly that the Empire countries will not stand for the present marriage in any form. At the present moment constant communication is being maintained between London and the Empire capitals.

COMBINED VIEWS

There is reason to believe that the combined views of the Empire and Home Governments have narrowed down to the simple issue of the abandonment of the King's proposed marriage or His Majesty's abdication.

It is not thought that even the Home Government would attempt to embark on legislation embodying some kind of compromised form of marriage, even if that is possible legally, which is doubtful. Obviously the Ministers cannot compel the King to abandon either the lady or the throne. He can dismiss them or they can resign, but the national and imperial consequences of the Government's resigning in the present circumstances, when it is difficult to see any alternate Government which would take office, it is thought, will make either contingency unlikely. A decisive result is not expected for a day or two.
